For the Republican.

THOUGHTS OF THE PAST.

BY J. G. LONDEN.

'Tis a farewell of sadness, I bid now to you,
Crushed seems the gladness that once we did know;
Fond beats the heart—yet with sorrow to-night—
As I think of the joys that once were so bright.
Tho' I mingle, alas! with the bright and the gay,
But I cannot, no, I cannot drive them away,
For still in my breast, where memories burn,
The thoughts of the past will always return.

The song of the birdlings awaken the morn,
As those near the cottage where I was born;
They seem to be happy, as they waft in the air,
The music of love they willingly bear,
But sad seems the effort to enliven by song,
This heart that is musing, in morning's throng;
Fondly, oh! fondly, return oft to me
The songs of the past, though they bring misery.

Alone in the world—though alone I must stray—
I know there are loved ones, who, for me will pray;
And tears that are hidden, may secretly fall,
For him that was wayward, yet loving to all.
And there on the cheek, remain as a token,
To tell how fondly his name has been spoken;
'Tis there, fond thoughts, around me were cast,
Dewdrops of life—sweet gems of the past.

Select Miscellany.

Three Brave Men.

Pretty Barbara Ferros would not marry.

Her mother was in consternation.

"Why are you so stubborn, Barbara?" she asked. "You have plenty of lovers."

"But they do not suit me," said Barbara, coolly tying her curls before the mirror.

"Why not?"

"I want, when I marry, a man who is brave, equal to any emergency. If I give up my liberty, I want to be taken care of."

"Silly child! What is the matter with Big Barney, the blacksmith?"

"He is big, but I never learned that he was brave."

"And you never her heard that he was not. What is the matter with Ernest, the gunsmith?"

"He's as pla d as goat's milk."

"That is no sign that he is a coward. There is little Fritz, the tanner; he is quarrelsome enough for you, surely."

"He is no bigger than a bantam cock. It is little he could do if the house was set upon by robbers."

"It is not always strength that wins a fight, girl. It takes brains as well as brawn. Come now, Barbara, give these fellows a fair trial."

Barbara turned her face before the mirror, letting down one raven tress, and looping up another.

"I will, mother," she said, at last.

That evening Ernest, the gunsmith, knocked at the door.

"You sent for me, Barbara?" he said, going to the girl, who stood upon the hearth, coquettishly warming one pretty foot and then the other.

"Yes, Ernest," she replied. "I've been thinking of what you said the other night, when you were here."

"Well Barbara?"

Ernest spoke quietly, but his dark blue eyes flashed, as he looked at her intently.

"I want to test you."

"How?"

"I want to see if you dare do a very disagreable thing."

"What is it?"

"There is an old coffin up stairs. It smells of mould. They say that Redmond, the murderer, was burried in it; but the devil came for his body and left the coffin empty, at the end of a week, and it was finally taken from the tomb. It is up stairs in the chamber that my grandfather died in, and they say grandfather does not rest easy in his grave, for some reason, though that I know nothing about. Dare you make that your bed to-night?"

Ernest laughed.

"Is that all? I will do that, and sleep soundly. Why pretty one, did you think I had weak nerves?"

"Your nerves will have good proof if you undertake it. Remember no one sleeps in that wing of the house."

"I shall sleep the sounder."

"Good night, then. I will send a lad to show you the chamber. If you stay there till morning," said the imperious Miss Barbara, with a nod of her pretty head, "I will marry you."

"You vow it?"

"I vow it."

Ernest turned straightway and following the lad in waiting, through dim rooms and passages, echoing stairs, along narrow damp ways, where rats scuttled before them, to a low chamber. The boy looked pale and scared, and evidently wanted to hurry away; but Ernest made him wait until he took a survey of the room by the aid of his lamp. It was very large and full of recesses, with high windows in them; which were barred across. He remembered that old Grandsire Ferros had been insane several years before his death, so this precaution had been necessary for the safety of himself and others.

In the centre of the room stood a coffin; beside it was placed a chair. The room was otherwise perfectly empty.

Ernest stretched himself in the coffin. "Be kind enough to tell Miss Barbara that it is a very good fit," said he.

The boy went out and shut the door, leaving the gunsmith alone in the dark.

Meanwhile, Barbara was talking with the blacksmith in the keeping-room.

"Barney," said she, pulling her hands away from his grasp, when he would have kissed her, "I have a test to put you to, before I give you an answer. There is a corpse lying in the chamber where my grandsire died, in the untenanted wing of the house. If you dare sit there, all night, and let nothing drive you from your post, you'll not ask me to marry you in vain."

"You give me a light and a bottle of wine and a book to read?"

"Nothing!"

"Are these all the conditions you can offer me, Barbara?"

"All. And if you get frightened, you need never look me in the face again."

"I'll take them, then."

So Barney was conducted to his post by the lad who had been instructed in the secret, and whose voluntary stare at Ernest's placid face as it lay in the coffin, was interpreted by Barney to be natural awe of a corpse. He took his seat and the boy left him alone with the darkness, the rats and the coffin.

Soon after, young Fritz, the tanner, arrived, flattered and hopeful from the fact that Barbara had sent for him.

"Have you changed your mind, Barbara?" he asked.

"No, and I shall not, until I know that you can do a really brave thing."

"What shall it be? I swear to satisfy you Barbara."

"I have a proposal to make to you. My plan requires skill as well as courage."

"Tell me!"

"Well in this house is a man watching a corpse. He has sworn not to leave his post till morning. If you can make him do it I shall be satisfied that you are as smart and as brave as I require a husband to be."

"Why nothing is so easy!" exclaimed Fritz, "I can scare him away. Furnish me with a sheet and show me the room, and go to your rest Barbara. You will find me at the post in the morning."

Barbara did as he required, and saw the tanner step blithely away to his task. It was then nearly twelve o'clock, and sought her own chamber. Barney was sitting at his vigil.

The face in the coffin gleamed whiter in the darkness. The rats squeaked as if famine were upon them, and they smelled flesh. The thought made him shudder. He got up and walked, but something made a slight noise, as if somebody was behind him and he put his chair with the back against the wall, and sat down again. He had been hard at work all day, and at last, in spite of everything he grew sleepy. Finally he nodded and snored.

Suddenly it seemed as if somebody had touched him. He awoke with a start and saw nobody near, though in the centre of the room stood a white figure.

"Curse you get out of this!" he exclaimed, in a fright, using the very first words that came to his tongue.

The figure held up its right hand and slowly approached him. He started to his feet. The specire came nearer pressing him in the corner.

"The d—l take you!" cried Barney, in his extremity.

Involuntarily he stepped back, still the figure advanced, coming nearer and extending both arms, as if to take him in a ghastly embrace. The hair started up on Barney's head; he grew desperate and, as the gleaming arms would have touched him, he fell upon the ghost like a whirlwind, tearing off the sheet, thumping, pounding, beating and kicking, more and more outraged at the resistance he met, which told him the truth.

As the reader knows, he was big and Fritz was little; and while pummeling the little tanner unmercifully, and Fritz was trying to lounge at Barney's stomach to take the wind out of him, both plunging and kicking like horses, they were terrified by hearing a voice cry:

"Take one of your own size, big Barney."

Looking around they saw the corpse sitting up in his coffin. This was too much. They released each other and sprang for the door. They never knew how they got out; but they ran home in hot haste, panting like stags.

She married him; and though she sent Fritz and Barney invitations to the wedding, they did not appear. If they discovered the trick, they kept the knowledge to themselves, and never faced Barbara's laughing eyes again.

A SMART BOY.—A smart little man of six years went to a children's ball. At this age, and until boys pretend to be brave and girls timid, the boys are less venturesome than the girls. Our young friend kept himself in a corner, an idler, dull and bored. The lady of the house called to him, "Come now, play and dance with the others here. See those pretty girls—choose one for your little wife." "A wife," cried the young cynic, "a wife for me! No, no, I don't want to be plagued like papa!"

In making our arrangements to live, we should never forget that we have also to die.

PLAYING KITTEN.

Have you seen a kitten play with a ball?
She clutches it tight in her sharp little claws,
Tosses it up, and then lets it fall;
Rolls it away, after a pause,
Brings it again to her side with a spring,
Bound far from it with motion active,
Yet ne'er for an instant, loses the thing—
Oh! a kitten playing is very attractive.

Just so a maiden plays with my heart—
A moment she holds it meshed in her smiles,
Then seems to forget me and turns apart;
And, when I am almost freed from her wiles,
Calls me back with a glance so sweet
That only her in the world I see,
And again lie captive before her feet,
Though I know she is playing the kitten with me.

"A Boy Again."

A company of gentlemen in Reno were, not long since, whiling an evening away by singing songs and relating anecdotes, when one asked for the song, "Would I were a boy again;" at which "Old Pi Ute." (John K. Lovejoy,) who was present, broke out as follows:

"A boy again! Who would be a boy again if he could? to have measles, mumps and itch; to get licked by bigger boys and scolded by other brothers; to stub your toes; to have the bellyache from swallowing cherry stones; to get lousy helping Irish Mike to do his sums; to have chapped hands and frozen toes; to slip upon the ice; to do chores; to get your ears boxed; to get whaled by a thick-headed school master; to be made to stand as the 'dunce' for the amusement of the school; to have visitors to come to the school and tell you how miserably weak and stupid you were when you were born; and to ask you what would have become of you at that interesting time of life if your parents had not been so patient with and so kind to you of course it was all one's fault that he was born and his parents were in no way concerned or interested in the matter; to eat at the second table when company comes; to set out cabbage plants because you are little and consequently it wouldn't make your back ache so much; to be made go to school when you don't want to; to get spelled down in school; to lose your marbles; to have your sled broken; to get hit in the eye with frozen apples and soggy snow balls; to cut your finger; lose your knife; to have a hole in the rear of your pants when your pretty cousin from the city comes to see you; to be called a coward if you don't fight at school; be whaled at home if you do fight at school; to be struck after a little girl and dare not tell her; to have no fire crackers on the Fourth of July; to have no skates on Christmas; to want a piece of bread and butter with honey and get your ears pulled; to be kept from the circus when it comes to town and when all other boys go: get pounded for stealing roasting ears; to get run by bull dogs for trying to nip water melons; to have the canker rash, catechism, and stone bruises; to be called up to kiss all the old women that visit you mother; to be scolded because you like Katie Love better than your own dear sister; to be told of what a scorching time little boys will have who tell lies, and are not like George Washington; to catch your big brother kissing the pretty school marm on the sly, and wish you was big so you could kiss her too, and—and—why darn being a boy again."—Crescent, New York.

DANIEL WEBSTER AND HIS BILLS.—Our readers are aware that the late Hon. Daniel Webster, was not so careful in his pecuniary matters as some men, and this fault was at times taken advantage of. At one time a man sawed a pile of wood for him, and having presented his bill, it was promptly paid by Mr. Webster. The laborer took sick during the winter, and a neighbor advised him to call upon Mr. Webster for the payment of his bill.

"But he has paid me," said the man.

"No matter," replied the dishonest adviser, "call again with it. He don't know and don't mind what he pays. It is a very common thing for him to pay much smaller bills over twice."

The man got well, and carried in his account the second time. Mr. Webster looked at it, looked at the man, remembered him; but paid the bill without demurring.

The fellow got "short" some three or four months afterwards, and bethought him of the generous and loose manner of Mr. Webster in his money matters; and a third time he called and presented the bill for sawing the wood. Mr. Webster took the account, which he immediately recognized, and scanning the woodsawyer a moment, said—

"How do you keep your books, sir?"

"I keep no books," said the man abashed.

"I think you do sir," continued Mr. Webster, with marked emphasis; and you excel those who are satisfied with the double entry system. You keep your books on the tripple entry plan, I observe."

Tearing up the account Mr. Webster added—"Go sir, and be honest hereafter. I have no objections to paying these little bills twice, but I cannot pay them three times. You may retire."

The man left the room, as though he was suffocating for want of air. He had learned a lesson that lasted through life.

The Lamp Post.

BY HUGH JAMES BENFIN.

"My good mother, Dame Nature, had given me a place upon the trunk of a half grown tree where I had every opportunity to grow up and become a goodly bough, which in the course of time I certainly did.

When I had taken a survey of surrounding objects, I found that there was stretched out upon the landscape, a forest containing thousands and thousands of trees such as that whereon I grew, and millions of buds like myself. Often, during the earlier years of my life, dusky forms gathered in the forest beneath me. There the indian hunter pursued the chase, raised the war-whoop, or wooed his dusky mate. But I must hurry over this early part of my history, although I might tell you many a legend of these dusky denizens of the forest, stranger than fiction. I might paint their 'savage' virtues in such colors as would put to shame the civilized, and gilded vices of your self-vaunted race.

"After a time the red men were driven away by the whites, and then the great forest was rapidly destroyed by the axes of the settlers. One by one I heard the crash of falling trees, break in upon the stillness of the air, all the time trembling lest the axe should be laid at the root of my parent tree, and I perish.

"It so happened that a certain settler, possessed of more taste than is common to men of his class, became the owner of the land whereon my parent tree flourished. This tree and a number of its neighbors he did not cut down, but left them stand as an ornament to the house he built. A queer little house it was too I assure you! It was made of hewn logs, which were built up to the hight of one low story and then thatched over. The crevices between the logs, were closed up by a sort of mud plaster. The cottage had but two windows. It was divided into three apartments, two of which were dormitories, and the third and larger room, served the purpose of kitchen, dining room, sitting room and parlor. Here lived the settler and his wife, here they reared a family of children, here they enjoyed more of true happiness than usually falls to the lot of kings. They lived peacefully, aye lovingly together, for they had no neighbors near enough to incite jealousy, or foment quarrels between them.

"Years rolled on; new settlers came to people the wilderness, and a sturdy manly race they were. How brisk and lively was their tread! With what an aim of conscious strength they went about their daily toil, singing as they went! I often think of these hardy sons of toil, when I see the sickly, sallow-skinned, liver-diseased, puny, pent up sons of the city, like yourself for instance;" and here the little old fellow gave me another stern look over his spectacles that quite awed me. Then he went on: "I say I often think of those settlers, with their perfect physical forms, and wish that you miserable sufferers for want of exercise and pure air could have seen them as I did. No I don't either. The sight would only awaken your envy, not rouse you from your miserable lethargy.

Wearing Mourning.

We long for the day when this custom shall be obsolete. It is unbecoming the truly afflicted one. The wearer says by the black garments: "I have lost a dear friend. I am in deep sorrow." But true grief does not wish to parade itself before the eye of the stranger; much less does it assert its extent. The stricken one naturally goes apart from the world to pour out the tears. Real affliction seeks privacy. It is no respect to the departed friend to say we are in sorrow. If we have real grief, it will be discovered. When God has entered a household in the awful chastisement of death it is time for religious meditation and communion with God on the part of the survivors. How sadly out of place, then, are the milliner and the dressmaker, the trying on of dresses, and the trimming of bonnets. There is something profane in exciting the vanity of a young girl by fitting a waist or tying on a hat, when the corpse of a father is lying in an adjoining room. It is a sacrilege to drag the widow forth from her grief to be fitted for a gown, or to select a veil. It is often terribly oppressive to the poor. The widow, left desolate, with half a dozen little children, the family means already reduced by the long sickness of the father, must draw on her scanty purse to pay for a new wardrobe for herself and children, throwing away the goodly stock of garments already prepared, when she most likely knows not where she is to get bread for those little ones. Truly may fashion be called a tyrant, when it robs a widow of her last dollar. Surely your sorrow will not be questioned, even if you should not call

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN

W. W. BROWN, A. E. HUTCHISON, } Editors.

Terms $2 Per Annum in Advance.

BELLEFONTE, PA.,

Wednesday Morning, Jan. 19, 1870.

ADVERTISING.—The BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN has a larger circulation than any other Republican paper published in the county. Our merchants and business men will please make a note of this.

BARCAINS! BARGAINS!!

The Bellefonte "Republican" and the "American Agriculturist."

We are now prepared to offer to the people of Centre county, a Great Bargain for the coming year. It is this: To every subscriber who will send us $3.00, in advance, we will send the

BELLEFONTE "REPUBLICAN,"

and the

"AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST,"

for one year. Of the REPUBLICAN we need not speak at present.

The American Agriculturist is a work that no farmer, nor house keeper should be without. As a farm journal we think it has no superior in the world—certainly none in the United States. It is issued monthly, and the subscription price is $1.50 per annum. By clubing with the REPUBLICAN you save fifty cents, and secure more good reading matter than you can obtain in any other way for the same money.

We hope the reading public will avail themselves of this very liberal offer.

Money! Money!!

As we have been at a heavy expense in the purchase of our new Gordon press, we most respectfully, but earnestly, request all those who have not yet paid us their subscription to the REPUBLICAN to do so without delay.

It takes money to carry on a printing office, and to print a good paper. We have to pay cash for paper, ink, labor, and everything connected with our office. We realize the fact that a hint is all any of our patrons want, and they will shell out the needful with alacrity and delight.

Two dollars may seem to be a small sum of money. So it is; but two dollars multiplied by six or eight hundred, make rather a desirable little pile of greenbacks.

The State Treasurer.

There was great excitement, last week, in Harrisburg, over the election of W. W. Irwin, of Beaver, to the office of State Treasurer. Robert W. Mackey, the present incumbent, had received, as we stated last week, the party, or caucus nomination, he receiving 50 votes, and Irwin 8 votes in said caucus; 19 Republicans refusing to take any part in the caucus.

The Democrats who are in a hopeless minority, nominated Daniel O'Barr. On the morning of the 11th inst., it was evident that the Republicans who had refused to enter the caucus, were determined not to be bound by its action, and that a coallition had been, or was about being formed, with the Democrats which would defeat Mackey and elect Irwin. Excitement run high, and everybody was anxious to know the truth or falsity of the report.

On the 12th inst., at noon, the joint Convention met. The excitement was intense. The lobbies were crowded, and all the members of both Houses in their seats save Mr. Billingfelt, of Lancaster.

The correspondent of the Commercial says: "The roll call went swimmingly along until Lowry's name was reached, when, amid uproarious laughter, he voted for Bishop Simpson. He was the first bolter. Senator Warfel voted for A. L. Henderson; Representative Coray for L. D. Shoemaker, and eleven other representatives for Irwin. Senator Kerr did not vote. Mackey lacked five votes of an election. The excitement was very great during the progress of the vote, but at its close the Mackey men lost confidence, as it became evident that he could not command enough Republicans to carry him through.

The second ballot was even more exciting. When Beck, the first Democratic Senator on the roll, was called and he voted for Irwin, the unpalatable truth was shown to Mackey's friends that a combination had been made against their candidate. The interest in the result became absorbing as Democrat after Democrat voted for Irwin. When Beans, of Bucks, and Brobst, of Berks, renewed their allegiance to Barr, the caucus candidate, there was exulting laughter on the Republican side. Before the result was announced, and when it became understood that Irwin lacked only one vote of election, Brobst desired to change his vote from Barr to Irwin. Speaker Stinson decided it could not be done after the Speaker had voted. The decision created a great deal of uproar, but was finally acquiesced in although some of the majority desired an appeal. The vote announced showed Irwin had sixty-six; Mackey sixty-three; Barr two; Shoemaker one.

It is the town talk that during the progress of the ballot a member crossed from the Republican to the Democratic side, and made certain offers to a Democrat noted as a "pincher," conditional on his remaining faithful to Barr. A young Democratic Senator, from the eastern part of the State, overhearing the offer, said to the wavering representative: You sell us out, will you? If you do I'll knock your d—d head off," at the same time showing a piece of hickory firewood sufficient to brain an ox, let alone a Bucks county copperhead."

The result of the second ballot satisfied the Mackey men that their only hope lay in an adjournment. Harry White moved to adjourn to the second Tuesday of October, but the Convention voted on a less remote day, defeating it by ayes 56, nays 76. During the vote appeals were made to the Republican Irwin men to adjourn and an arrangement would be made perfectly satisfactory to them, but they were unsuccessful, and quite a number of the supporters of Mackey, including both Speakers, voted against the motion. This seemed to show the bolters had the sympathies of more members than voted directly for Irwin. The third ballot was a formality for every one knew how it would terminate from preceding indications.—When the Speaker announced that Irwin had 70 votes and Mackey 61, and officially declared the former elected State Treasurer, there was a liberal amount of applause, but the Speaker checked it. The joint convention then adjourned, and the members returned to their respective chambers.

There were no particular exhibitions of illtemper by the defeated after the result had been declared, while the successful party refrained from any jubilant manifestations."

As our readers well know, we were not in favor of the re-election of Mackey, and that we brought out the name of G. W. Huff, Esq., of Greensburg, for that position; nevertheless when Mr. Mackey received the caucus nomination upon pledges, from himself and friends to reform the alleged abuses in the Treasury Department, we aquiesced in his nomination, and were perfectly satisfied that he should be re-elected Of course our first choice was Mr. Huff, and the correspondent above referred to, says:

"The events of to day make it tolerably clear that had Huff, of Greensburg, the third candidate, remained in the field, he would have been nominated in caucus over both Irwin and Mackey. He was here to-day, and it was proposed to place him in nomination in convention, but he declined mixing up in the fight as it stood."

We confess that Mr. Huff's action in this matter makes us very proud of him, inasmuch as it proves that he regards peace and harmony in our ranks, the success of Republican principles, and the observance of its time-honored customs, to his personal aggrandizement or certain success. A true man, as he has proved himself to be, will find, before long, that his noble services will be rewarded, and his fine talents and purity of character called into requisition by the people.

Violations of the time honored customs of the party, or the breaking down of regular nominations, when such nominations are honestly and fairly made are never justifiable, and when resorted to generally work ruin and disaster to the organization, and the men who resort to such means to benefit their friends, or reak their vengeance upon some supposed enemy or Ring. We depricate, we despise and abhor Rings, or corruption, in any party, and are glad to believe, if corruption does exist in the Republican party, there is strength, and purity, and honesty sufficient inside the organization to purify, regenerate and reform it, without calling upon the assistance of the "pinchers" and "roosters" of the copperhead party assembled at Harrisburg.

With this view of the case, and as we intimated last week, we are sorry that Gen. Irwin suffered himself to be used as the instrument in the hands of a few men, to break down the regular nominee of the party, and thus sow, broadcast, the seeds of discord and disorganization.

Gen. Irwin was State Treasurer in 1868, and has always been an active and trustworthy Republican, and an honest and upright man. His election, therefore, is no triumph for the copperheads. It is simply the election of one Republican—Gen. Irwin—over another Republican—R. W. Mackey—the friends of Mr. Irwin claiming that the nomination of Mackey was not honorably or fairly made. The Republican members who voted for Gen. Irwin deny that they are 'bolters,' upon the ground that they did not enter the caucus. We think they should have gone into convention, and been bound by its action. They thought differently.

The copperheads are jubilant over the apparent split in the Republican party; but it will avail them nothing. The copperheads in the Legislature, by voting for a Republican, show conclusively, that they are not controlled by principle; but are like a ship at sea without rudder, sail or compass, left to the mercy of the storm, or the surrounding elements. For this reason they were the willing tools of the rebels during the war, and the sycophants and lick-spittles of Andy Johnson after the war. The leaders of that party are hypocrits and semi-traitors, and for this reason they have been cast aside and thrown overboard by the intelligent and loyal people of the country.

Will the leaders of the Republican party be so foolish, so inconsistent with their past professions, as to fight over the spoils of a fat office, and thus suffer these disreputable leaders and the copperhead party to re-gain power in our good old Commonwealth? Forbid it, common-sense! Forbid it, Heaven!

To this end we sincerely hope that the Harrisburg Telegraph, the Pittsburgh Commercial, the Beaver Radical, and other prominent and leading Republican journals will accept the situation, cease their abuse of each other, and of the members of the legislature who could not agree upon the caucus nominee; but who have always been good and true Republicans, and employ their splendid talents, their ready pens, as well as the ample columns of their respective newspapers, in pouring oil and wine into the wounds they themselves have made, and in dealing heavier and more effective blows upon the common enemy of a free Government and the great Republican party.

Governor's Message.

The following are the leading features of Gov. Geary,s message, which is too long for publication in our columns:

Financially the State is in a sound condition. The receipts during the year ending November 30, 1869, including the balance in the Treasury November 30, 1868, amounted to $6,254,636 65. Expenditures during that time. $4,853,774 16. Leaving a balance in the Treasury on the 30th of November last of 1,400,862 49.

The State debt November 30, 1868, was $33,286,947 13, of which was redeemed during the fiscal year $472,387,18 five per cent loans, and $19 00 cancelled Relief notes, leaving the debt November 30, 1869 $32,814,540 95.

This is highly satisfactory, showing a steady gradual reduction of State indebtedness under Republican administration, nearly five millions having been paid since January, 1867, when the debt amounted to $37,704,409 72.

Over a column is devoted to Assets in Sinking Fund; the Common Schools, Soldier's Orphan Schools and Agricultural College receive due attention; the Military, Military History and Home for Disabled Soldiers, are brought to the attention of the Legislature; the Avondale Disaster is properly commented on, and a law to prevent future similar calamities recommended. The other subjects embraced in the message are the Board of Public Charities Geological Survey Inspections of Gas, Revision of the Civil Code, Statistics, Prison Discipline. The Judiciary Boundary Line. In Memoriam, Pardons and National Affairs.

On National affairs, the Governor expresses himself strongly in favor of a protective tariff and hostile to any modification of the tariff laws by which the interests of Pennsylvania would be injuriously affected. On this question he has planted himself on impregnable grounds, supported by the entire Republican party of the State, and it is to be hoped that his views, fearlessly expressed, may have the weight to which their soundness entitle them.—In relation to the Cuban question, he favors an early, if not immediate recognition of the independence of the struggling patriots.

Accompanying the message is a Pardon Report, containing all the pardons granted and death warrants executed during the year 1869, with the names of persons who solicited Executive clemency in behalf of convicts. This report shows conclusively that Gov. Geary, in every instance in which he granted a pardon, was clearly justified in doing so by the array of respectable names attached to the petition.

The Fifteenth Amendment.

The Democrats in the Legislatures of N. York and Ohio (says the Washington Chronicle) have sternly united against the Fifteenth Amendment, and we hereby return to them our thanks for having made for us this broad and vital issue in the Congressional elections of 1870. Wise men would have accepted the inevitable, but these Bourbons are resolved to bury their party beyond all hope of resurrection. There is a possibility that the independent Republicans of Ohio may still vote to ratify the amendment—and but a bare possibility. As they have generally been elected from the Republican districts, their hostility to the amendment, while it cannot defeat that great measure, will undoubtedly hasten their return to the oblivion from which they were accidentally called.—The amendment is safe without either of these States, and when Rhode Island, Missouri and Kansas have corrected informalities in the action of their Legislatures, and Nebraska shall have ratified, together with Texas, Mississippi and Georgia, we shall be able to announce the addition of this new article to the national Constitution, and we hope before the 4th of March ensuing. These States, without New York and Ohio, will give for the amendment thirty votes—more than enough to secure its ratification.

ABOUT four weeks ago a little German girl in Brooklyn, Ohio, took sick with the lock-jaw, and in a few days was thought dead and was buried.—On the evening of her burial the mother, for some reason, was led to the grave, and with her ear pressed close to the ground, thought she heard a noise and believed her child to be moving in the coffin. She withheld from asking assistance for fear of being ridiculed, and immediately procured a spade and began to dig up the earth. Soon she came to the coffin, and hurriedly taking it from the earth, opened it and there found the body of her child, 9 hours after its burial, as warm as if it were living, and lying on its side. She took the child to her house, where a physician was immediately called in, and every restorative applied to bring the child to life. It was too late. The soul had taken its flight, and in a few hours more the body was cold and icy. It was soon buried and has not since been disturbed.

A SEDUCER SHOT.—A young lady named Batham shot a man by the name of McNash, in Wheeling, Va., on Friday last. Miss Batham alleges that McNash had ruined her and was about to be married to another woman. Before firing, she asked him if he would fulfill his promise of marriage. Upon being answered in the negative; she fired.—McNash is mortally wounded.

CONGRESS.

Congress, after a recess of ten days, re assembled on the 10th inst. The members appear to realize the fact that all eyes are upon them, and that their constituents are looking to them for some relief—speedy relief in financial matters. The great trouble appears to be in agreeing upon some plan. The bills are almost as numerous and varied as the members. The latest feasible financial project introduced, is Mr. Sumner's bill for refunding the public debt, extending banking privileges, and establishing specie payments. Where there are so many financial doctors, all having plans of their own to offer, it is very difficult to determine what will be done or which plan will be adopted.

At present, we think the plan of Mr. Boutwell, and that offered by Mr. Sumner, are looked upon with the most favor, and the result will probably be the passage of a bill embracing portions of each. There is a wide difference in portions of the two plans, as will be seen by the following statement which we copy from the Philadelphia Press:

"Secretary Boutwell proposes to fund twelve hundred millions of six per cent, five twenty bonds into four and a half per cent., one-third of which shall be redeemable at the pleasure of the Government after fifteen years and payable in coin at the expiration of twenty years another third to run for twenty and twenty-five years, and the other for twenty five and thirty years.

Mr sumner proposes to fund $500,000,000, running ten and forty years, at five per cent; $500,000,000 more, running fifteen and fifty years, at four and a half per cent.; and an optional $500,000,000, running twenty and sixty years, at four per cent. The first series is to be disposed of at par for coin, or exchanged at par for five-twenties; the second similarly as to coin, or for Government obligations bearing a higher rate of interest; and the third the same as to coin, or for United States notes, national bank notes, or fractional currency. Both agree that the new bonds shall be exempt from taxation.

Mr. Sumner proposes to make the national bank circulation $500,000,000 instead of $300,000,000, and to have a new distribution of it in proportion to population. When the premium on gold reaches five per cent, the legal tenders are to be taken for customs duties, and interest on the three per cent, legal tender certificates shall cease.

It will be seen that Mr, Sumner's plan involves resumption, while Mr. Boutwell's postpones it with the hope that financial prosperity will lead to its natural accomplishment. The cause with one of these gentlemen thus becomes the effect with the other, and vice versa.

The financial steadiness and increased domestic prosperity which Mr. Boutwell aims at are expected to culminate in his second proposition, the equalization of export and imports and the restoration of our commercial marine. These results, Mr. Sumner thinks, can best be reached by a reduction of revenue, and, consequently taxation. The former would reduce the expenditures of the Government to a minimum by rigid economy and by decreasing the interest, but would also pay the debt rapidly, in order the sooner to be relieved of all taxation. The latter would use the same economy, would have a little less reduction of interest, and would distribute the debt over generations, in order to lighten taxation for the present and future.

Stated in another form, and briefly, Mr. Boutwell proposes:

PRIMARILY.

A new loan, at reduced uniform interest; graduated as to time.
Reduced expenditure, including interest.
Maintenance of taxation.
Extinguishment of debt and all taxation.

SECONDARILY.

Equation of values.
Restoration of commerce.
Resumption.

Mr. Sumner proposes:

PRIMARILY.

A new loan, graduated as to interest and time.
Reduced expenditures, including less reduction of interest.
Decrease of taxation.
Postponement of payment of debt.
Resumption of specie payment.

SECONDARILY.

Equation of values.
Restoration of commerce.
Extinguishment of debt.

We also learn from a special dispatch to the Harrisburg Telegraph, that the House, on the 13th inst., passed the bill admitting Virginia As passed, the bill contains the simple announcement that the State, having a republican form of government, and having subscribed to the conditions imposed by Congress, is entitled to representation in that body. At one time it looked as though the House would adopt the bill as it came from the Reconstruction Committee; but the assurance that Virginia could be trusted without stipulation, which came from Messrs. Farnsworth and Bingham, and then General Logan's charge that the conditions were valueless, because there was no penalty for their violation, led many to go for Bingham's bill, admitting her unconditionally. Of the minority all were Republicans, and of the majority over half were Democrats.—Pennsylvania voted according to strict party lines, the Democrats all for immediate admission, and the Republicans for stipulations and a safeguard. On the final vote 142 votes were cast for the bill, only 49 Republicans voting "no," all the Pennsylvania Republicans among them except Mercur.

The Senate will probably pass the House bill. If they do, it will be signed by the President at once, and her admission secured next week. Had General Butler been here, the result in the House would probably have been different, as it needed but the change of two votes, with his own, to have defeated Mr. Bingham's bill, and these two could have been had by proper management.

Southern Malignity.

It is one of the brightest honors which cluster around the memory of Edwin M. Stanton, that he was thoroughly hated as well as feared by all the enemies of the Union and the Flag of the United States. The men who were lost in admiration of the prowess and generalship of McClellan, are now stirred to the depths of their souls by indignation at the mention of the name of the War Secretary whose executive capacity and indomitable energy gave efficiency to our armies in the contest which saved our national existence. The malignity of the cavaliers of Europe whom Cromwell subdued was compelled to keep in bounds until after his decease, but when the stern old chieftain was compelled to surrender to the summons of death, the fires of relentless hate burst forth in insults offered to his lifeless body. So now the Southern rebels and their allies, the Northern Democracy, give vent to their malice in unmeasured abuse of the brave and heroic soul who proved more than a match, both for their seductions and their machinations. Since the days of Cromwell no man has struck heavier blows at aristocracy and despotism than Edwin M. Stanton. Consequently the myrmidons who quailed before his lightning glance while he was living, the moment that eye grew dim in death, hurled their insults at his lifeless corps. We quote the following from the Memphis Avalanche of Dec 25th—the Christmas greeting of that Democratic organ to its readers:

"A bad man has gone to his long account. A villain has shuffled off this mortal coil. A despot has kicked the bucket. There was great rejoicing in Pandemonium yesterday. Since that eventful day when Adam and Eve manufactured clothes out of fig leaves, there has been many large gatherings in hell and on earth. But the cavalcade that turned out in the infernal regions to greet Edwin M. Stanton, who died yesterday, was, in all probability, the largest that ever paid tribute to a congenial spirit—Stevens had been awarded the premium for being the biggest sinner in all purgatory, and he is no doubt now jealous of Stanton who he knows will put in for the medal, with a good prospect of wining it. That mawkish sentimentality which would throw the mantle of oblivion over the misdeeds of dead rascals, can not be observed in chronicling the death of E. M. Stanton. The most exquisite tortures served Stanton's enjoyment. The tyranny of Tiberius was forgotten in his enormities. He reveled for several years in tormenting all over whom he had power; but when he offended heaven and earth by hanging an inocent woman like a dog. God visited him with His righteous anger, and since the consummation of this atrocious deed, Stanton's physical system commenced decaying, and breaking up; and without a single tie on earth, destitute of all belief in the Christian religion, he died, and a little soul steeped in sin went to the devil. In nature he was revengeful and malignant, and so stubborn in opinion that he rarely changed his views or relinquished a purpose. He was as remorseless and cruel in disposition as a Camanche Indian; and joyously and without a shudder would have turned the Southern people over to massacre, and their homes to desolation. He was serene, not from philosophy, but from temperament and torpor. He belonged eminently to the animals known as coldbloods. No impulses ever stirred the feeble and sluggish current of his moral or mental nature. To call him a brute would be a lible upon the dog. Of humanity he was destitute. He was servile; he was cowardly. The manner of his death: shows the finger of retribution. He hungered for blood, for a position that would enable him to bedevil a defenceless people. A President, as mean and malignant as himself, appointed him United States Supreme Court Judge. This power caused the fiend to burst into wild, demoniac laughs. But that God, who would not permit the builders to occupy the impious tower on the plains of Shinar, smote the unctuous scoundrel so that he died. Nearly all the conspirators against the life of Mrs. Surratt have been blotted from the world they disgraced. Conover was sent to the Penitentiary, and Andrew Johnson was consigned to private life. Holt still lives, but still prays for death. Stanton has gone, and Holt will soon follow, for not more certainly is he burned, who puts his hand in the flames, than is he punished who commits a moral wrong. The wicked man's "sins will find him out." It is not an agreeable duty to inscribe the true character of an infamous public man on his tomb; but it is an imperative duty. Speak nothing but the truth of the dead. Stanton, the infamous, is drinking molten iron trading in pyrotechnics, and broiling in a heated furnace, and the people rejoice.

Our readers will pardon us for inflicting upon them so long a paragraph filled with such contemptible as well as diabolical spite. But we deem it a duty to compel attention to the fact that rebel hatred is not altogether a thing of the past. It is well for us to recognize in such utterance the same devilish spirit which moved the rebels to insult our flag, and to torture our brave sons and brothers in Southern prisons. We wish to remind the Republicans of the North what they may expect in case they are careless enough to allow the rebel element to get the upper hand in the lately revolted States. The firm hand is needed for many years to come, if we would not see again opened the vials which before filled the South with a dreadful outpouring of rapine, bloshed and desolation.

The chief danger of our times is in reposing confidence too implicitly in the ex-rebels. They are subdued by the rod, but not changed in the temper of their minds, nor is the feelings of their hearts. The hope of some day enjoying sweet revenge has not died out of their hearts, nor all expectation of regaining their lost dominion passed from the minds of the Southern aristocracy. If, about the time of Oliver Cromwell's death, a prophecy had been made that the Stuarts would soon be invited to sit again on the throne from which they had been banished, the prophet would have been called a fool or a madman, as we should now call one who should predict that John C. Breckinridge would succeed General Grant in the Presidential chair. The politicians of the South have not studied the changes revelations of human history for naught The old malignity, the same destructive purpose, is in their hearts. When opportunity allows, it will burst forth, and be all the more terrible in its vengeance for the years of restraint it has endured. Forewarned, as we are of this fact, we should be ever armed and watchful in defence against it. Toledo Blade.

A PAPER out in Illinois talks in this way: "If you owe any one a single dollar, go and pay him; when there is so little money we ought to keep it moving around lively. Jim owed us and we owed Bill and Bill owed Jim. Jim got mad because we made him pay one morning last week: but we paid Bill and Bill paid Jim, and Jim went to bed that night happy as a clam, with just as much money as he had in the morning, and three men out of debt.

IN MAKING excavations in East Davenport Iowa, a few days since, a mound of muscel shells one hundred and fifty feet long, forty feet wide, and two feet in thickness, was found, and in the midst of the shells over a dozen stone hatchets were discovered. The shells were buried under eighteen inches of soil.

BEST CABINET ORGANS

AT LOWEST PRICES

That the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet and Merripolitan Organs are the Best in the World is proved by the almost unanimous opinion of professional musicians, by the award to them of Seventy-Five Gold and Silver Medals or other highest premiums at principal industrial competitions within a few years, including the Medal at the Paris Exposition, and by a sale very much greater than that of any similar instruments.—This company manufacture Only First-class Instruments, and will not make "cheap organs" at any price, or suffer an inferior instrument to bear their name. Having greatly increased their facilities for manufacture, by the introduction of new machinery and otherwise, they are now making Reduced Organs than Ever Before, at increased economy in cost, which, in accordance with their fixed policy of selling always at least remunerative profit, they are now offering at Prices of Inferior Work. Four Octave Organs, Plain Walnut Case, $50. Five Octave Organs, Double Reed, Solid Walnut Case, carved and paneled, with FIVE STOPS (Viola, Diapason, Melodia, Flute, Tremulant), $125. Other styles in proportion.

Horace Greeley in Bellefonte.

The renowned Philosopher of the New York Tribune, HORACE GREELEY, having consented to deliver a lecture in Bellefonte, (the subject of which will be announced in due time) the undersigned have the gratification to announce to the citizens of this county that Mr. GREELEY has appointed as the occasion on which he will make his appearance before a Centre county audience. The fame of HORACE GREELEY is co-extensive with the English language, and, though one of the most erratic, he is certain'y one of the most remarkable men of the age. As editor of the New York Tribune he is known throughout the length and breadth of the land and from a journalistic point of view, he stands second to no living man. Everybody has heard of him everybody wants to see him, and curiosity to know what he looks like will do much towards securing him a large audience.—Coming here under editorial auspices, (both Republican and Democratic) he will not appear as a partizan, and Democrats and Republicans are alike invited to come and hear him.

The tickets for Mr Greeley's lecture are now printed, and will be sold at the bookstores and by agents throughout the county. Perfect arrangements will be made for securing reserved seats, and ushers will be in attendance to conduct those holding reserved tickets to their places.

Tickets to all parts the house 50 cents. Reserved seats 75 cents. Let everybody come

RUN AWAY.—Mr. Jewitt ROSS in company with two young ladies, in returning home from Milesburg where they had been attending church were all more or less injured by the horses running away and upsetting the buggy. It is a wonder they were not all killed.

OIL.—We hear from a reliable source, that both the price of oil and the quantity produced in the oil regions is increasing and that a great excitement is spring ing up, almost equal to that of 1864 We understand that our old friend Geo. Kepler is still numbered among the lucky oil men.

ADVERTISING has created many a new business, has enlarged many an old business, has rescued many a lost business, has saved many a failing business, has preserved many a large business, and secured success in every business. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear—and advertise in the REPUBLICAN.

ADAM RUFF.—If this should meet the eye of Adam Ruff (or any person acquainted with him), now about twenty-two years of age, who left his home in August, 1867, since when nothing has been heard of him, a line addressed to his father, John G Ruff, Easton, Pa., will tend to allay the mental suffering of a parent. Papers please copy.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

LARGE HOG.—Mr. John Shultz, who resides at Messrs. Curtin's Rolling Mill, butchered a hog on the 10th day of December, 1869, that weighed 294 lbs dressed. The hog was just 10 months and 1 day old. Mr. Shultz is a laboring man, and never fed his pig anything during the summer but grass and the slops of the kitchen. He fed it no grain until a few weeks before he butchered it.

DOWN WITH IT.—All who wish to petition Congress for the abolition of the franking privilege, will find opportunity at the Post office. We understand that petitions have been sent to every Post office; and we earnestly request all who favor this change, to call at their respective offices and sign at once. The Postmaster General desires to have them ready for presentation at the present Session of Congress.

THE new church erected by the Evangelical Association, in Jacksonville, Centre county, will be dedicated on the 30th of this month, (January,) to the worship of the triune God. The services will commence on the evening previous. Rev's. Carothers, Aurand, Martzler and Smith, will be present. A general invitation is extended to all.

S. SMITH,
Pastor in charge.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.—On Monday last, we enjoyed the pleasure of a visit from our esteemed friend Rev. J. C. Laverty now Rector of St. Pauls church, Canton, Ohio. Rev. Laverty, was during the war Rector of the Episcopal church, in this place and won to himself hosts of friends, both in and out of the church, in consequence of the zeal he manifested in the cause of his Master, and the patriotism he displayed in behalf of the Government. He informs us that since he went to Canton, his people, through the aid of all denominations are erecting a comfortable church edifice in that place, which is almost completed, and that his congregation is daily growing in numbers. Rev. Laverty, is very zealous in the cause in which he is engaged and we congratulate his people, aye the whole people of Canton, in having such a faithful minister and so pure and upright a citizen in their midst. He will make his influence felt wherever he goes.

NOTICE.—Dr. W. H. Witmor, of Philadelphia, will be at the Brockerhoff House, Bellefonte, Pa., on the 22d day of January, to remain for one week. Dr. Witmor, as we have already said is no stranger in Centre county, having respectable connections at Centre Hall, as well as in other portions of the county, and we can assure our readers that he has in his possession, credentials from the best and most learned medical men both in the City and State. We believe the Dr. will do just what he promises. v2n2 2t

PATENT FILES.—Mr. R. A. Kinsloe, of this place, is Agent for White's Patent Files for newspapers, bill heads, letter heads, &c. These files are evidently a great convenience and should be in every house, or at least in every house that the newspaper enters. Every body should file their newspaper. Twenty years hence, it will afford you great pleasure to refer to your old files.

These files can be seen at the various printing offices—rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, and are for sale at Geo. O'Bryen's Book Store, in the Bush & McClain Block.

BUTTER MAKING.—Mr. G. S. Bonham sends us a statement of butter made this season, from which it appears that 1017 lbs were made from 5 cows, (one of which was but 3 years old, and one gave no milk till June 5,) in a little more than 8 months, from the 22d April last. Besides this, he says cream and milk were used by the family, without stint. If our friend in Bradford will beat this, Mr. B. says he will try again We are always glad to publish such matters.

We clip the above from the Tioga Agitator for the benefit of our farmers, and ask the question, can Centre county surpass, or even equal it? Let us hear from you.

REPORT of Cold Stream School, Rush township, for month ending, Dec. 30th, 1869. H. Oscar Kline, teacher. Number of pupils in attendance 58; percent. of attendance, 71; average attendance, 41; alphabet, 3; spelling and not reading, 5; Reading 59; Writing, 43; Mental Arithmetic, 43; Written Arithmetic, 43; Geography, 43; Grammar, 16; U. S. History, 16; Composition and Declamation, 26; Map drawing taught in connection with Geography; Vocal music practiced daily. Lectures in Physiology semi weekly. The elements of Geography, Written and Mental Arithmetic and Writing taught orally to those not included in the above classification.

Tardiness and irregularity of attendance are drawbacks on this, as on all other schools. School Officers and Parents are negligent in the performance of a duty incumbent upon them viz: visiting the school.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.—Our townsman, J. H. Orvis, Esq., one of the leading lawyers of the State, but whose politics are exceedingly bad, has just completed a large and commodeous dwelling house outside the borough limits. In size it is 65x56 feet and is located in the center of a large and beautiful yard, comprising about two acres, surrounded with shade and fruit trees and commodeous outhouses, making it a cozy and pleasant retreat from the trying cares of a business life.

The carpenter work was done by Mr. Null, and the plastering by Mr. Jno. Harrison, which for neatness in execution is unsurpassed; the painting by Mr. D. S. Dunham, in a neat and tasteful manner, which justly entitles him to rank as one of the very best artis's in his profession. The graining which for nearness and exactness in execution is unsurpassable, was done by Mr. Charles Dugan, recently of Ireland, but now of this place, Mr. Dugan has no superior in his line in this country.

We congratulate Mr. Orvis in his prosperity and hope he will live long to enjoy the "works of his own hands."

THE Philadelphia Day gives the following as a complete and carefully compiled list, embracing the name of every Senator from Pennsylvania since the foundation of the Government, with the term of service of each. The names are placed in alphabetical order: Isaac D. Barnard, 1827 31; Wm. Bigler, 1855 61, Wm. Bingham, 1795 1801; Richard Brodhead, 1851 57; Jas Buchanan, 1835 45; Charles R, Buckalew, 1863-69; Simon Cameron, 1845-49, 1857 61, 1867 73; James Cooper, 1849 55; Edgar Cowan, 1861 67; George Mifflin Dallas, 1831 33; William Findlay, 1821-27; Albert Gallatin, 1793 94; Andrew Gregg, 1807 13; Abner Lacock, 1813-19; George Logan, 1801-06; Michael Leib, 1808-14; Walter Lowrie, 1819 25; Samuel Maclay, 1803 08; Wm. Maclay, 1789-91; Wm. Marks, 1825-31, Samuel McKean, 1834 39; Robert Morris, 1789 95; Peter Muhlenberg, 1801-07; Jonathan Roberts, 1814-21; Jas. Ross, 1794-1803; John Scott, 1869 75; Daniel Sturgeon, 1840-51; Wm. Wilkins, 1831-34; David Wilmot, 1861 63. All the Senators but four were natives of the State. Cooper was born in Maryland, Gallatin in Switzerland, and Morris in England.

PHILIPSBURG ITEMS.—Milton Meredith, a young man employed on Munson's mill near Philipsburg, had the fingers sawed from his right hand on Jan. 13th.

THE Philipsburg band, we understand, are making preparations for attending the "Greeley Lecture."

A LITERARY Society has been organized by the young folks of Philipsburg, and so far proves a perfect success.

THERE are more secret societies in Philipsburg than any other town of its size in the state.

PETR SMITH'S brewery near Philipsburg, has been closed for a violation of the Revenue laws.

A NIGHT school for the purpose of giving instruction in Single Entry book keeping and Penmanship, has been opened by H. O. Kline, at Cold Stream school house, near Philipsburg.

The recent open weather has caused the lumbering to cease in the vicinity of Philipsburg and we judge elsewhere too.

NOT BAD.—Some fellow living not a thousand miles from Centre Hall, and, we presume, a constant reader of the Reporter, was seen a few days ago wending his way to that office, singing as he went the following lines. Judging from the character of the poetry the poor fellows heart must have been nearly broken:

"My wife has left my bed and board,
For a few days, for a few days;
She has left of her own accord,
When I was out from home;
I caution all to this amount,
Now-a-days, now-a-days;
Don't trust her on my account,
For she's never coming home."

A NEW Organ for the M. E. S. School, of this place, has been procured through the exertions of that indefatigable worker and friend of the school, Miss Bella Belle The S. School is in a flourishing condition, and none have worked harder or been more self sacrificing in their efforts to promote the school's prosperity than the lady above mentioned. The scholars of the S. School will now enjoy their Sunday treat with more relish than ever.

The organist of the church, Mrs. M. S. Dunham, has kindly consented to play the new instrument, during the sessions of the Sunday School.

DR. RAGE'S Catarrh Remedy is no Patent Medicine humbug gotten up to dupe the ignorant and credulous, nor is it represented as being "composed of rare and precious substances brought from the four corners of the earth, carried seven times across the Great Desert of Saharah on the backs of fourteen camels, and brought across the Atlantic Ocean on two ships." It is a simple, mild, soothing, pleasant Remedy—a perfect specific for Chronic Nasal Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," and kindred diseases. The proprietor, R. V. PIERCE, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., offers a reward of $500 for a case of Catarrh that he cannot cure. For sale by most Druggists everywhere. Sent by mail, post paid, for sixty cents. Address the proprietor as above. v2n3 2t

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last, after the arrival of the 11 o'clock train, and while everybody and all their friends were there as usual to see the distinguished arrivals, and to jostle each other to and fro on the little standing room, which is provided for passengers, or those really having business at the train, Mr. Ephraim Shearer a resident of Walker township, as if to evade the crowd, took a position on the outside of the railing, placed there by the R. R. Co., as a protection and also a notice to all persons to keep off the sideling and out of the way of the engine. Why Mr. Shearer should stand just where he did, and how he failed to hear the ringing of the bell, or to see the engine approaching him is a mystery.

While standing in this position, he was struck by the car or engine and had his leg broken, and was otherwise injured. He was carried into the passenger depot and medical aid immediately provided; but it was of no avail. The injuries and the shock upon his nervous system was too much. He died at half past 3 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. Shearer was an honest industrious laboring man and a good citizen. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn their loss.

DALTON, OHIO, January 3d, 1870.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

As I have but little to do, and like to be doing something, I will try to write you a few lines to give you an idea of the times here, in this our new home. We have had but very little winter here as yet; but have had a great deal of dull and changeable weather, as may be seen from the subjoined table:

Dec. 1, cloudy and moderate; 2d, a little snow; 3d, clear and pleasant; 4th, cool and cloudy; 5th, moderate and cloudy; 6th, cool and cloudy; 7th, cool with a little snow; 8th clear and pleasant, thawing; 9th, clear and pleasant; 10th, cloudy and moderate; 11th, cloudy with a little rain; 12th, the same; 13th, cloudy and moderate; 14th, ditto; 15th rain all day; 16th and 17th cloudy and moderate; 18th cool with ½ inch of snow; 19th, cool with some snow squalls; 20th, cool and cloudy; 21st, snow and rain; 22d, rain and windy; 23d, cold and windy; 24th, clear and pleasant; 25th, cloudy and moderate; 26th, warm and drisling rain; 27th, moderate with rain; 28th, warm, clearing off; 29th, 30th and 31st, clear and pleasant.

Now, I see by the account in the REPUBLICAN, that there is a difference in the weather here, and in Centre. For instance; on the 18th we had a ½ inch of snow, when you had 17 inches. There has not been more than three inches of snow at any time, and that lay but a short time.

As a general thing, it has been very healthy here—there is one case of Typhoid fever at this time; but there are a great many cases of Railroad fever, there being a rail road in contemplation from Baltimore by way of Pittsburg to Toledo. There is a prospect of its being constructed through this neighborhood, which gives rise to a general Railroad fever; but we are not seriously ill.

A little competition is needed; then we would be all right. There is a fair course of trade here now, but another Railroad would make quite an improvement in this locality.

The markets at this place are as follows. Wheat, $1,10; Corn, 75 cts.; Oats, 40; Pork, $11 per hundred; Hogs live 8½ to 9 cts. per lb; Beef 8 to 9 cts. per lb; Butter 32 cents; Eggs 30 cts. per dozen; Flour $6 per barrel, and labor $1,00 per day. There is not much work to do in winter, except taking care of the stock and doing a little threshing.

Instead of freezing the life out of us in crossing the Allegheny Mountain, or the Seven mountains, we make our money in the summer and set by the fire in winter. A thing I have not done for years before.

There was a man by name of Jonathan Fisher, formerly of Clearfield, Pa., who was conductor on the local freight, from Alliance to Wooster, while at Massillon, and in the act of coupling the cars, fell between the bumpers and was so badly smashed that he died in about four hours after. My respects to all my old Centre county friends.

Yours truly,

S. S.

For the Republican.

UNIONVILLE, Jan. 15th, 1870.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—

We must confess that the city is very dull at this time. The weather is wretched. every one is complaining of severe colds. Our friends of the M. E. Church are in the midst of a revival. We understand that about forty souls have been converted and have come nobly out upon the side of the Lord. May they go on with the good work until Unionville is converted. So far, our worthy members have been without the aid of a minister, but their souls being in the cause are attributed the success. The Friend's meeting house is completed, and reflects great credit upon the architect and builder Jesse Cleaver, of this place. Sheriff Woodring bid fair one day this week, for getting a boarder from this Moral town. One of our young gents, heretofore considered eminently respectable, was caught leaving the private apartments of one of our Ladies, and upon being questioned by the young ladies Mamma, why "this was thusly" could give no satisfactory reasons for being there, with a few words of good advice, he was allowed to depart. Subsequently it was discovered, that our hero had taken a valuable lot of jewelry belonging to the young Miss, but by returning the glittering ornaments, and a faithful promise never to enter the house again, was saved a lingering life in the county prison. For the sake of his friends who are respectable, we, for the present, withhold his name.

Every one up here is going on the 25th to see and hear, the greatest live man in America, Horace Greeley. Why is it that tickets to his Lecture, have not been sent here? A great many could be sold. LIBERI.

OLD MAXIM.

"Hoe Your Own Row."

I think there are some maxims
Under the sun,
Scarce worth preservation;
But here, boys, is one
So sound and so simple,
'Tis worth while to know;
And all in the single line,
Hoe your own row!

If you want to have riches,
And want to have friends,
Don't trample the means down,
And look for the ends;
But always remember
Wherever you go,
The wisdom of practicing,
Hoe your own row!

Don't just sit and pray,
For increase of your store,
But work; who will help himself,
Heaven helps more.
The weeds while you're sleeping
Will come up and grow,
But if you would have the
Full ear, you must hoe!

Nor will it do only
To hoe out the weeds,
You must make your ground mellow,
And put in the seeds;
And when the young blade
Pushes through, you must know
There is nothing will strengthen
Its growth like the hoe!

There's no use of saying
What will be, will be.
Once try it, my lack brain,
And see what you'll see!
Why, just small potatoes,
And few in the row;
You'd better take hold then,
And honestly hoe!

A good many workers
I've known in my time—
Some builders of houses,
Some builders of rhyme!
And they that were prospered,
Were prospered, I know,
By the intent and meaning of
Hoe your own row!

I've known, too, a good many
Idlers, who said,
I've right to my living,
The world owes me bread!
A right! lazy lubber!
A thousand time No!
'Tis his, and his only
Who hoes his own row.

How to Keep Pastures in Good Condition.

It is with a pasture as with a man the income must be greater than the expenses, or it grows poor. Crops are the expenses. It is quite possible to make the surface of any soil unproductive and unprofitable, by carrying off more than is put on. Pasturing with cows that are yarded at night does this. Sheep or beeves that remain upon the land, on the contrary, return more than an equivalent in manure, and keep the land improving. Where plaster meets a want of the soil it may be kept improving by sowing broadcast a bushel and a half to the acre every spring, and feeding off the grass. Many farms in the grazing districts in the interior are kept up mainly by plaster and feeding. Some of them will carry a bullock to the acre. Other lands need lime, and the lime brings in clover and this plan, by the large drafts it makes upon the subsoil and the atmosphere always improves the pasture. In other districts ashes are accessible at reasonable rates, and they are always a reliable top-dressing. The effects are visible on some soils in increased crops of grass, for twenty years. Cheap ashes will keep up any pasture, pay their cost, and leave a profit. So will home made compost, if a man will but make and use it.—Along the seaboard the old pastures need nothing better than creek mud, and the weeds thrown up on the shore. Too often these are allowed to rot on the sand for want of labor to gather them. Irrigation is available in other cases, and where the waters of a brook can be turned over a pasture nothing more will be needed to keep it in good condition. Changing soil oftentimes has a wonderful influence. Sometimes on the same field of twenty acres there will be sandy or gravelly knolls nearly bare of vegetation, and hard clay or muck in swales. A top-dressing of the sand would pay on the swales, and nothing could be better for the knolls than the muck or clay. Our old pastures to be kept profitable must have something done for them. It will not pay to devote ten acres to a single cow.—American Agriculturist.

COAX THE HOG.—A correspondent of the New England Farmer, speaking of the difficulty of swine-driving, says it is "as easy as whistling, after you know how," to wit:

"To the end of a stout cord tie an ear of corn; drop it in front of the pig, to within five or six inches of its nose, and commence walking away in the direction you wish him to propel. If his pigship shows evidence of blighted hopes, or aberration of mind, from the singular conduct of the corn, seduce him into the belief that it is 'all right,' by letting him have a brief nibble at it, and then resume your line of march. In this way the most obdurate pig may be decoyed any reasonable distance."

IT is a poor practice to depend upon borrowing your neighbor's rakes, mowers, and all sorts of implements in haying and harvesting time.

The Chicken Disease.

We have complaints from various sections in eastern Pennsylvania of the prevalence of a disease among fowls of a very fatal character.—Some people call it 'chicken cholera,' some pleuro-pneumonia, and others "liver complaint." It is not confined to chickens, but attacks turkeys, ducks &c., as well. From all that appears to be known of it, the liver seems to be affected, and though the disease proves fatal in from twenty-four to forty-eight hours, a remedy has been found for it, which must of course be administered in time. It is a "blue pill," known as such to apothecaries. Give each chicken as soon as seized with the disease a two-grain blue pill, and if not out of danger by the following morning another—two pills almost universally effecting a cure! This is an easy and cheap remedy.

We have heard of farmers in the adjoining counties losing as many as from fifty to one hundred turkeys within two days, and very few escaped some loss, except those who provided for their fowls dry, cleanly houses, pure water, gravel, a little lime, old mortar or pulverized oyster shells; corn meal mush, and once a week a little chopped fresh meat. Those who thus provided for their feathered progeny are never visited with liver complaint, croup, pip, &c., and it is just as well that this should be remembered.

A farmer from Bucks county, who did not suffer in this way, in answering a question said that he had no doubt that unscrupulous persons were offering some of this diseased poultry for sale, and it behooved all to be cautious in making their purchases. Diseased poultry was easily known by its unnatural color and want of plumpness and condition. A word, therefore to the wise, etc.—Germantown Telegraph.

The Best Wash for Trees.

October is perhaps the best period for the autumn scraping and washing of fruit trees. The insects which hide in the bark and crevices of the trees have by that time retired to their winter quarters and can be easily destroyed. There is nothing equal as a "wash" with which to scrub the trees than a preparation of say one pound of whale oil soap to a large bucket of water, well dissolved.—There is nothing more nauseous to insects than this. It will lay "cold" everything that we have tried it on but the curculio—that, however, cares no more for the mixture, even though accompanied with sulphur, lime water and tobacco juice, than if it were a gingerly dose of pure spring water.—But rose-bugs and the steel-blue grape bug, surrender to its power incontinently. Every farmer and gardener ought to have a supply of this soap on hand for use whenever necessary.

Apple and pear trees well scraped and then washed with this preparation will not only be free from some of the chief insects praying upon foliage and fruit, but will sensibly feel its invigorating effect.—Germantown Telegraph.

SAVE THE CORNFODDER.—We have long been of the opinion that there was not that attention paid to the curing and saving of the cornfodder that its value demanded. Every good farmer must know that cattle eat it greedily through the winter, and if cut and steamed it is as good for them as the best hay and really more milk producing.

Where is the necessity of allowing it to remain in shocks until the middle or end of November? Corn should not be cut down until the stalks are dying and the grain is pretty hard, and then it should remain no longer in the field than is absolutely necessary for the drying of the grain. It should be husked as early as possible, and the fodder tied up in bundles and either carefully stacked near the cattle stables or put under the shelter in sheds.

It is well known, too, that horses prefer it to the best hay; also that the blades are especially sought for to feed racing animals, strengthening their wind and bottom beyond any other food. It is besides, wholesome provender and helps most beneficially in making the winter's supply of hay hold out till late in the spring, with the addition of chopped roots, which every farmer, who shrewdly looks to the main chance, ought to cultivate for feeding in the early part of the winter.—Germantown Telegraph.

A SALT BOX.—A correspondent makes a salt box like an old-fasioned writing desk. His is for one cow, is two feet long, twenty inches wide, six inches deep at the back, and four inches at the front. The cover is of one piece of board, the ends of the box slanting from back to front, that the water may run off and the salt be kept dry. In two hours the cow will learn to raise the cover with her nose; and when she withdraws her head, down drops the cover, and the salt is kept dry.—Country Gentleman.

GARDENING FOR LADIES.—Make up your beds early in the morning; sew buttons on your husband's shirts; do not rake up up any grievances; protect the young and tender branches of your family; plant a smile of good temper in your face, and cnrefully root out all angry feeling, and expect a good crop of happiness.

IN dressing your fields, cut your coat according to the cloth—that is, don't run in debt for fertilizers.

GREAT RUSH TO STERNBERG'S.

Sung to the Tune of "Yankee Doodle.

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And now comple connection's made,—
An enterprising notion.

The mighty work at last is done,
So speedily and brisk, oh!
And now in days we can run
From here to San Francisco.

No more we take the ancient route,
The stage, a horrid slow thing;
It banged the passengers about,
And wore out all their clothing.

CHORUS, for the end of each verse:

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And we buy clothes from A. STERNBERG,
A most delightful notion.

Through passengers by the Pacific Railroad, will call at the store of A. Sternberg, before starting, and provide themselves with a complete outfit of the elegant and substantial Spring and Summer Clothing, the very best assortment of which will always be found at A. Sternberg's Store.

People who travel by other routes, and also people who, instead of traveling by any route at all, prefer to stay at home, can find the most superior and seasonable garments, for every occasion, of every variety, and at the lowest prices.

SEWING MACHINES

AMERICAN BUTTON-HOLE

OVER-SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

MEDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.

In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.

SEWING MACHINE.

THE SINGER SEWING MACHINE

Among sewing machines, those made by the Singer Manufacturing Company, rank with the highest. Their manufacturing machines, have long been known as the best for manufacturing purposes. But within the past few years, they have given special attention to the production of a

FAMILY MACHINE,

destined to win much favor in the

HOUSEHOLD.

The machine which they now offer is quiet light running, simple, fast, noiseless. Its accessories for are simple and easily understood. Its delicate though enduring and tireless muscles of iron and steel, do all the work noiselessly, better, and few will deny, "Faster than hand can do it." They urge those wishing to purchase a machine, to examine all the other manufactures before buying, as it will, for itself, overcome all the objections to the other machines that can be brought against it.

HEMMING, BRAIDING, BINDING,
